

Beyond Blooms: Creative Design with Color, Structure & Seasonal Senescence

This talk will illustrate a diverse selection of distinctive plants with exceptional characteristics useful in a myriad of applications.

Many woody and herbaceous plants possess interesting foliage, color, and architectural structure. Others with multi-season interest, stunning shapes, and textures lend themselves to a wide variety of interesting presentations.

Showcase plants can complement flower arrangements. In a mixed garden border, they can provide structure and offer seasonal succession. This presentation will suggest plant combinations that you can translate into your own gardens, further enhancing them throughout the seasons.

Warren Leach and Debi Hogan, horticulturist and wife, owners of Massachusetts' Tranquil Lake Nursery in Rehoboth have recently established a permanent agricultural preservation covenant on the land, so that it can never be developed and must be farmed. The Rehoboth Land Trust, The Trustees of Reservations and the Massachusetts with the Department of Agriculture Resources have helped make this possible.
